INVITATION LETTER

Dear colleagues,

We are pleased to invite you to the Fourth International Interdisciplinary Scientific Conference EVERYDAY LIFE OF CHILDREN, which will be held on 19th and 20th November 2026 in Novi Sad. It will be organized by the Preschool Teacher Training College Novi Sad, Faculty of Educational Sciences Pula, the Pedagogical Society of Vojvodina and the Association of Preschool Teachers of Vojvodina.

The main topic of this year's conference are RELATIONSHIPS.

As one of the important pillars of the current preschool education programme in Serbia, relationships are also a concept that we analyse within our contemporary social context, in which relationships are key to the functioning of all actors and systems, both locally and globally. We believe that examining the different levels of relationships, the different participants of relationships, understanding the functioning and course of relationships, managing relationships, building relationships, predicting relationships between individuals, groups, people and technology provides a meaningful framework for interdisciplinary research and contributes to a deeper understanding of the complex concept and meaning of relationships, both for the everyday lives of children and for our relationship with the future.

We invite all interested to submit their research on understanding relationships from the perspective of different scientific disciplines for oral presentations or other forms of participation that they consider most appropriate for a joint interdisciplinary view of the relationships that make up everyday life, especially of the youngest generations.

Framework subtopics which can serve as a guide for participants to register with oral and poster presentations, round tables, and workshops:

- relationships in everyday life,
- relationships and childhood,
- relationships and education,
- relationships in early development,
- individual needs in relationships,
- relationships with technology,
- relationships and literature,
- media and communications,
- educational relationships,
- parenting practices,
- relationships in art,
- relationships and space.

The conference will be accredited by the Pedagogical Institute of Vojvodina as a form of professional training for employees in educational institutions in the Republic of Serbia.

The languages of the conference are Serbian and English.
